

XFINITY Connect

hansmast@comcast.net

+ Font Size -

Re: Medical Update

From : Paul Dulberg <pdulberg@comcast.net>

Tue, May 15, 2012 02:19 AM

Subject : Re: Medical UpdateTo : Hans Mast <hansmast@comcast.net>

Hi Hans,

This evening I let David Gagnon know. After a long dialog he volunteered his homeowners policy number. Said he has been busy working and forgot to turn your letter over to his homeowners insurance company. He said his wife was going over there this Thursday to pay the premium and she is going to drop it off.

Allstate
Policy # 912697167 10/24
Agent: Ken Shields
262-248-0861

David also said he felt threatened and is hesitant to admit to Negligence and that he could make this easy or hard for me. He wanted to know if he was going to get anything if he played ball. He told me that if he admits to negligence and it costs him anything that I don't want to see his bad side. He went on and on about how much things cost and that he doesn't have the money to pay for any of it.

When finally I told him to imagine himself in my shoes and that I haven't had an income for almost a year because of this and that I am down to living off my mother like a useless idiot and I am about to let 2 surgeons go in to see if they can do anything to help make my arm and use of my hand better just so i can do every day things. He cut in abruptly and said he's sorry but he doesn't give a damn and that I had better not try and go after more than its worth.

He kept driving after getting something in return for making this easy. Said that he has been screwed his entire life and that he wants something in return. I didn't play into his hand and just said all I'm after is getting the bills paid and that's what the insurance is for.

He did threaten to lie and tell the insurance that I was there to help cut down the tree or that I was intoxicated. I said you know that's not true, I was only there because you asked me to stop by and see if I wanted the wood for my fireplace and the only reason you asked me was because it was cheaper than disposing of it yourself. Besides, I don't drink and everyone in my life knows it. He actually snarled at me.

I said I only helped you because you were having trouble cutting the branches and you asked if I could hold it steady for you.

He said don't you think it's both of our faults that I'm not 100% negligent? I said Dave, you were operating the chainsaw, asked me to hold a branch, were cutting then came at me with it and cut half way through my arm before I could get out of the way. You knew where I was, you told me where to stand and how you wanted it held. You had the brainfart and used the chainsaw in a manner which hurt me pretty bad. How is that my fault in any way?

He said you know that after we got out of the hospital I felt bad and I hope You get what ever Your entitled to and wanted to know what I thought that number was.

I said I have no idea, I'm sure the lawyer and insurance companies can figure that out.

He said he could make this difficult or easy for me and that I would regret it if he has to make it difficult. He told me a long story about a guy who tried to sue for too much and ended up having to pay all the bills himself because he got greedy.

My answer to that was that I just want my arm to work without hurting and need the bills paid for and that I never thought that I would make money off it.

He said well your getting something, I knew it when that fat nurse at the hospital said uh ohh, looks like someone's going to get boo boo money from my mistake and he looked right at me. From that point on every time I think about you getting money for my mistake and that I've been screwed by everyone in my life when it was their fault I get pissed.

I said Dave, I don't think this is going to cost you anything and all the lawyer wants is your homeowners policy number. And I highly doubt I'm even going to get back what I would have made if I was able to work after the medical bills are paid. This isn't some big time lawsuit against something like McDonalds or anything like that.

He said if he sees that I'm paid a huge sum of money he's going to be pissed and that I don't want to see him pissed. Told me the chainsaw incident would be the least of my worries. He then very nervously showed me his policy number and said to tell you that he was working, time passed and he had just forgot all about it. And that he was going to have his wife deliver it to his insurance agent on Thursday. He said it would look better if he turned over the insurance policy number willingly.

After that I said thanks and that I had to get home for dinner.

Hans, I don't wish to have to go back over and talk with him anymore. Sometimes I think he is actually nuts and will do something stupid if he feels like it at the moment. He was very offensive at times and is a very selfish person.

Once again, sorry for the drama,
Paul

Paul Dulberg
847-497-4250
Sent from my iPad

On May 14, 2012, at 2:41 PM, Hans Mast <hansmast@comcast.net> wrote:

> Thanks for the update. We're gonna go ahead and file suit. You may want to let him know that so he isn't angry. He can call me if he wants to talk about it.

>

> Thanks

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Paul Dulberg <pdulberg@comcast.net>

> To: Hans Mast <hansmast@comcast.net>

> Sent: Mon, 14 May 2012 19:40:20 -0000 (UTC)

> Subject: Medical Update

>

> Hi Hans,

>

> I saw Dr. Sagerman today, he scheduled another appointment for this Thursday to meet his partner. They are going to evaluate whether doing surgery is going to be beneficial.

>

> Paul Dulberg

> 847-497-4250

> Sent from my iPad