Dear Mr Talarico,

This isn't an official answer but I put your question about who to mail if the some of the defendants were saved the summons and complaint but haven't filed an appearance yet and needing to ask the court for permission to use an alternate method of serving the remaining defendants online and received a response from several attorneys all saying basically the same thing.

For the defendants that have been served the summons and complaint but have not appeared yet then it is proper to mail the defendants directly at the address they were served the summons and complaint.

Not much can be done about mailing the defendants that have not been served the summons and complaint but they should be sent the mailing as soon as they are served.
